

Volunteering for the Future.

Objectives of the project

1. to offer young returned volunteers orientation on how to stay involved back home after they have volunteered abroad and raise their awareness of opportunities to carry on their interest in development issues.
2. generate resources on active citizenship, including research and training manuals for returned volunteers, as well as training opportunities for volunteers and volunteer sending agency representatives, and shared learning events to disseminate the good practice realised and practised as a result of the collaboration.

Activities of the project

After their voluntary service they are motivated to become engaged for a better world from within their home country as well. The experiences of volunteers are a treasure for every work on development education in Europe.

In the framework of the project finep and the project partners will therefore:

- create a baseline-study about the engagement of returnees
- offer trainings for returnees to become multipliers in development education on European and national level
- conduct workshops for trainers of sending organizations
- elaborate training handbooks for trainers of sending organizations on development education courses on an European and a national level
- develop online-courses for the qualification of returnees, multipliers and trainers

Further Information: <http://returnees.finep.org>

We, the forum for international development + planning, implement this project in Germany as a part of a wider European Project Partnership.

finep is a nonprofit project and consulting organisation working in the area of sustainable development with a focus on the thematic fields of development policy, environmental policy and the promotion of local democracy.

finep

Plochinger Str. 6
D-73730 Esslingen
Germany

www.finep.org

Lisa Stroetmann, Tel. +49 711 / 93 27 68 69, lisa.stroetmann@finep.org

Kai Diederich, Tel. +49 711 / 93 27 68 62, kai.diederich@finep.org

The project „Volunteering for the Future“ is funded by the European Commission. Duration till December 2018.